The Hon. Gavin Jennings

Victorian Minister for Aboriginal Affairs

Victoria is showing the way to the rest of the country with its negotiations on advancing treaties for its First Nations' traditional owners. Things have been hectic in recent months following elections to put together the First Peoples' Assembly of Victoria. This group of 33 people will now be responsible for working with the Victorian Government to shape the framework for treaties across the state. It's historic! The rest of the country will no doubt be watching very closely.
